Dear Fellow Investor,

You see, one little company sits at the intersection of a once-in-a-generation shift.
To understand the sheer scale of this opportunity, just consider the following...

The New York Times reports, "this isn't pie-in-the-sky technology: there are already 12 million vehicles around the world that use either liquefied or compressed natural gas, though only 140,000 in the U.S."

Meaning, we're in the very early stages here in the U.S. of a landmark shift to what one analyst at bank Société Générale calls the fuel of "no choice"...

On June 7th, The Wall Street Journal reported that natural gas is entering a "Golden Age"...

And you can't draw a line through this historic opportunity from any two points without coming across the small-cap stock some of the world's most successful investors are right now scooping up for themselves!
